DOL Posts Blog: Inclusive Apprenticeships: Connecting Employers and Career Seekers. The U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) published a blog, which highlights despite being one of the oldest forms of job training available, apprenticeship is remarkably flexible. It enables workers to earn a steady paycheck while receiving valuable on-the-job training in a wide range of industries while helping employers develop a highly-skilled pipeline of talent. The power of apprenticeship is amplified when they include all workers, including those with disabilities. That’s why the Labor Department’s Office of Disability Employment Policy (ODEP) supports disability-inclusive apprenticeships through a range of programs and initiatives. To read the full blog, visit: https://blog.dol.gov/2020/11/09/inclusive-apprenticeships.

DOL Seeks Comments for its BLS National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 1997. The Bureau of Labor Statistics within the U.S. Department of Labor has published a notice in the November 13 FEDERAL REGISTER. Comments are invited on: (1) Whether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the Department, including whether the information will have practical utility; (2) if the information will be processed and used in a timely manner; (3) the accuracy of the agency's estimates of the burden and cost of the collection of information, including the validity of the methodology and assumptions used; (4) ways to enhance the quality, utility and clarity of the information collection; and (5) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on those who are to respond, including the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology. Comments due: December 14.

DOL Seeks Comments on its Performance Reporting System. The U.S. Department of Labor’s (DOL’s) Employment and Training Administration (ETA) has published a notice in the November 25 FEDERAL REGISTER. The ETA is soliciting comments concerning a proposed extension for the authority to conduct the information collection request (ICR) titled, "DOL-only Performance Accountability, Information, and Reporting System." This ICR is the product of a joint effort among the DOL offices responsible for the following programs: WIOA Adult, WIOA Dislocated Worker, WIOA Youth, National Dislocated Worker Grants, Dislocated Worker Projects authorized under WIOA sec. 169(c), Wagner Peyser Employment Service, National Farmworker Jobs Program, Job Corps, YouthBuild, Indian and Native American Program, as well as non-WIOA covered programs, including Trade Adjustment Assistance, Reentry Employment Opportunities, H-1B discretionary grants, Senior Community Service Employment Program, Apprenticeship grants, and the Jobs for Veterans’ State Grants Programs. Comments due: January 25, 2021.

DOL Seeks Comments for its CAPE-Youth Data Collection. The Office of Disability Employment Policy within the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) has published a notice in the November 24 FEDERAL REGISTER. The Center for Advancing Policy on Employment for Youth (CAPE-Youth) is focused on supporting state efforts to align state workforce systems to establish pathways toward careers and financial self-sufficiency for youth and young adults with disabilities (Y&YAD). In order to support the needs of state policy makers as they work to implement the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act and improve employment outcomes for Y&YAD, CAPE-Youth will be conducting several studies, which will require data collection through surveys, focus groups, and interviews. Comments due: January 25, 2021.
Kilianya entered the Jobs for Delaware Graduates (JDG) program in 2019 as a second semester student. She comes from a low-income family and her mother did not graduate high school. She was basic skills deficient and lacked the maturity and motivation to find a job or internship. She was not ready to interview for a COOP position at that time, but after a few months in the program, she had created a resume and practiced interviewing. By mid-April, she had landed a position at a local law firm that satisfied her COOP experience. Kilianya received her high school diploma.

As a result of her professionalism and performance, she was offered a permanent position at the law firm as an Office Assistant. Throughout the summer of 2019, she worked 20-30 hours/week. In the fall of 2019, she entered DTCC. Post-secondary preparation and transition continued as well as guidance and counseling on how she could schedule her classes to maximize her work availability. By November 2019, she was doing better handling classes and work. She was having some anxiety issues. As a part of follow-up services, strategies for time management and the consideration of seeing a therapist were discussed. Another option considered was taking fewer classes in the future.

At this point, financial literacy education with the focus on financial management and budgeting assistance was provided. She was shown how to monitor her spending through a cell phone app. As her spending habits were reviewed, she could not believe how much she was spending at Dunkin Donuts each month. She learned how to set a limit on spending through the app; she now gets a notification when she spends over her set limits. She was excited to start saving more money.

She did well in her classes during the spring semester of 2020, adapting to virtual learning, and continued to work at the law firm. Employment information and career counseling resulted in encouraging her to ask for a raise. She practiced her speech to her boss over and over, until she was completely confident. She texted the next day saying her boss gave her a $2/hour raise on the spot. Her follow up ended in June 2020, but she is still in touch with her Jobs for Delaware Graduates Career Placement Advisor.

Interested in sharing a new practice or innovative approach that you’re trying in your area? The Employment and Training Administration (ETA) is interested in sharing strategies from across the country to promote peer learning and replication. If you would like to be considered for featuring in an upcoming newsletter, please email your organization, program name and brief description of the practice or approach to the ETA Division of Youth Services at: youth.services@dol.gov.

Parent and Family Digital Learning Guide. This guide released by the U.S. Department of Education helps parents and guardians understand how digital tools can provide tailored learning opportunities, engage students with course materials, encourage creative expression, and enrich the educational experience. The guide also guidance and best practices for caregivers around various topics.

Registered Apprenticeship Re-imagined: Lessons Learned from the American Apprenticeship Initiative. This report released by National Governors Association was developed to share promising practices and lessons learned through American Apprenticeship Initiative (AAI). The report highlights factors that lead to successful outcomes for RAPs, drawing on what worked well for AAI grantees – including the top tier of highest performing grantees.

Connecting Opportunity Youth and Employers through Work-Based Learning: The benefits, challenges and best practices for building a work-based learning model. This white paper released by YouthBuild USA incorporates current research and best practices informed by YouthBuild USA’s collaboration with YouthBuild programs that participated in the YouthBuild High-Demand Career Pathways Initiative. The insights captured in this paper emphasize work-based learning (WBL) as an essential tool for partnering with opportunity youth to build the skillsets and mindsets that lead to lifelong learning, livelihood and leadership.

Understanding What Works in Postsecondary Education. This memo released by MDRC draws lessons and policy implications from two decades of rigorous research in postsecondary institutions focused on these problems. The students who participated in this research were primarily low-income students and many were students of color. All of the studies referenced here used randomized controlled trials, the highest standard of evidence recognized by the U.S Department of Education and the scientific research community. Despite the barriers that many students face, the findings discussed here demonstrate the growing and impressive evidence base on what can be done to help low-income students and students of color succeed in college.

Pushing Toward Progress. This report released by MDRC presents findings on how the Male Student Success Initiative program was implemented during the first year of the Men of Color College Achievement study, using an early sample of students enrolled in the program. Students were enrolled in the study in two cohorts: the first in spring 2019 and the second in fall 2019.
COVID-19 Response Information Hub. This information hub was developed by the American Youth Policy Forum was developed during this COVID-19 pandemic. The resources are pertinent to the disadvantaged youth populations. One group of youth are highlighted each week.

Taking Internships Online. This issue focus released by MDRC shares lessons from MDRC’s experience planning and implementing a virtual learning program and offers some things for other organizations to consider if they are thinking about offering virtual programming in the future.

Upcoming Webinars/Webcasts

On December 2nd, American Youth Policy Forum will host a virtual event entitled: Breaking Through Barriers: Elevating the Voices of Young People. This online event will highlight the talents and stories of systems-involved youth. Through a youth-centered lens, attendees will enjoy performances from young artists, a special guest appearance and meaningful conversations regarding the experiences of foster youth and justice-involved youth. This event is tailored for young leaders and adults with an interest in learning more about justice-involved and foster youth and will serve as a space to celebrate the strengths of our most vulnerable young people! To register for the online event, visit: https://www.aypf.org/event/breaking-through-barriers/.

On December 11th, the Council of State Governments will host a webinar entitled: Disability Employment Etiquette. During this webinar, participants will explore general best practices for how to interact with individuals with disabilities and integrate inclusive practices on the personal, professional, and state policy level. Acknowledging individual prejudice or errors in past behavior can be an enlightening but vulnerable process. This session will feature a panel discussion, questions and answer session, and the opportunity for small group engagement. Breaking participants into small groups to work through several situational examples can provide an outlet for learning, growth and expression. Rejoin entire group briefly at the end of the session to review the examples provided to solidify the training. To register for the webinar, visit: https://csg-org.zoom.us/meeting/register/tZwuc-ippz0qGNKHZ2MQkvs9H1G_DMbTXDc.
Past Webinars/Webcasts

On November 18th American Youth Policy Forum hosted a webinar entitled: Researcher-Policymaker Collaboration in COVID-19: Lessons Learned from Boston’s Summer Jobs Program. The webinar highlighted how research can inform policy in the midst of a crisis. This past Spring, a collaborative relationship between Professor Alicia Modestino and the Boston Mayor’s office saved and then expanded Boston’s summer jobs program in the midst of the biggest pandemic in a century. During the webinar presenters shared the lessons learned from that story, featuring introductory remarks by Vivian Tseng, William T. Grant Foundation. To view an archive of the webinar, visit: https://www.aypf.org/event/researcher-policymaker-collaboration-in-covid19/.
